Dr. Van Wormer Elected on Tinley School Board

The school election held Saturday night, at Tinley Park, to elect a director to fill a vacancy on the local school board, caused by the recent resignation of Philip Mager, attracted more local attention than a national election.

Two candidates, Dr. Van Wormer and William Maihoff, were in the field. Nearly every vote in this school district was marshaled out, and after the smoke of battle had cleared away, it was found that Dr. Van Wormer was the victor, having received 99 votes, Mr. Maihoff receiving 24 votes.

The school proposition is getting to be a quite serious one with Tinley Park, inasmuch as the local school is far too small for the large number of pupils now attending. There are only two rooms, and these are crowded. The worst congestion is in the primary room, where there are 58 children. These pupils are only given an hour and a half of instruction each morning, on account of the crowded condition of the room. The parents, in many instances, are much displeased with this, as they feel the children are not getting the full time of instruction they are entitled to. As a result of this situation, a new schoolhouse is being agitated. It is pointed out that when the concrete road is completed thru Tinley Park, this place will develop more, and with the addition of new families, more pupils will be sent to the local school, so that, in the course of a few years, a new schoolhouse will be required anyway.

Many pupils outside of this district, who paid tuition to attend the local school, have had to be turned away this year on account of the crowded condition of the school. From present indications it is probable that the new school proposition will be agitated this winter and placed on the ballot next Spring.

New Lenox Man Gets Hidden Honey

This is a story of hidden sweets. Recently, after the old traction line was torn up thru New Lenox, Newton Hines happened to be going over the place where the switch used to be, east of the village, and saw quite a number of bees buzzing around. Upon investigation, he found a large old gasoline can lying among some bushes, and upon closer examination, found it was full of honey. Mr. Hines took the can home and opened it, and got 50 pounds of honey out of it.

Dream of 13 Years Is Realized Finally

For thirteen years there has been one spot in Joliet which has been a great source of comfort to people down and out, for here they were given shelter, physical and spiritual food, all by one man, Peter McCarthy. In spite of efforts made by opposing factions to get him and his mission out of the building on Collins street, the Lord seemed to pave the way which enabled him to hold on. The name of Morning Star Mission has meant a great deal in the lives of men who have been converted at this mission, and it truly has been a "morning star" in their lives, pointing to a richer and better life.

PETER MCCARTHY

Hundreds of men, the flotsam and jetsam of humanity, have been gathered in from the street and gutter and placed on their feet again thru the wonderful work of Brother McCarthy. Whenever he found a man hungry, cold and friendless, he took him to his mission, gave him a good square meal, a warm bed, and then talked to him about his soul's salvation, and in almost every instance he won his man.

For many years Brother McCarthy lived in fear that someone might buy the building he had his mission in, and thus he would be compelled to move. He dreamed for these many years what a wonderful thing it would be if he could in some way get someone interested to buy the property for him, and suddenly, as if by magic, comes the glad news that Brother McCarthy's dreams of the past many years have now really been fulfilled, as the property in question was purchased the past week for $3500 by the board of trustees of this mission, $500 of the purchase price being donated by two converted men.

This week Brother McCarthy and the Morning Star Mission celebrate their thirteenth year of service to humanity, and with the approach of the Thanksgiving

Dragging Brake Beam Rips Up Railroad Crossing

The accident jinx appears to be on the trail of Tinley Park. Last Friday night, a very serious accident was very narrowly averted, when a fast east-bound freight tore up part of the crossing west of the flag shanty, when a dragging brake beam on one of the cars caught on some planks. The planks were hurled under the cars and carried along for quite a distance. One of the planks was hurled out from under the cars at the depot. Luckily no one was standing at the depot at the time. Another train crew standing on a side track witnessed the trouble, and signaled the engineer of the fast moving train to stop, which he did. It took the train crew over three-quarters of an hour to repair the broken brake beam.

Charles P. Hollstein of Tinley Park finds it a pretty difficult task to raise a dog. Some time ago he purchased a pure bred bull pup for $50, and the dog suddenly took ill, and after being taken to the dog hospital at Palos Park, died. Recently Mr. Hollstein bought a pure bred Spitz dog for $10, and this canine was struck and killed by a Rock Island train Friday night. The jinx again.

Push Highway Grading

The new site of the Lincoln highway at New Lenox is providing quite a lot of work. Grading has been under way for some time. The knoll over the Wabash westward is being cut down considerably, so that there will be hardly any incline on the road. The culverts between New Lenox and Frankfort have about all been completed. Grading work has been going on for the past month. No concrete work will be done until next Spring. This part of the highway will remain closed for the winter.

season, they surely have a great deal to be thankful for, especially for the wondrous way in which the prayers and dreams of the years have been blessed with fruition.

Brother McCarthy invested every cent he had in the world in the mission, and has bravely carried on when it seemed the odds were going against him. There is perhaps no other man so familiarly known in Joliet as "Pete" McCarthy, as he greets his friends with the smile that never fades.

In reality, Peter McCarthy has done greater work than the churches of the city have done. How many ministers have taken the drunken man out of the gutter, fed him, given him shelter, and talked Jesus Christ to him? How many ministers have assumed responsibility for wayward boys and girls brought into court, and returned them to their homes and relatives, paying even the carfare to get them home? These are only a few of the countless things that Peter McCarthy and his Morning Star Mission have done for humanity. He has lived up to the ideals and examples of Christ. More power to you, Brother McCarthy, and congratulations on the realization of your life's dream of the perpetuation of the Morning Star Mission.

News-Bulletin Gets Many New Subs.

The News-Bulletin is showing a good, steady gain in circulation, and the past week a good list of new names were added to our subscription list, most of these being from Tinley Park.

The News-Bulletin endeavors at all times to give the news of the home communities while it is interesting news, and to boost for the interests of the communities it serves.

Once in a while we hear some unappreciative knocker say, "Oh, what's the use of taking the paper, there is no news in it, anyway," but yet this same knocker secretly borrows the paper from his neighbors, and when he does not get it, then he hollers. Let such a knocker have an item of news which he is anxious to get before the public, then he is anxious to find the editor. Or if some news occurs in which he figures in an unenviable light, how quick he is to ask the editor to suppress such an item.

The News-Bulletin has many warm and true friends, and if we do have a few knockers, they are of such insignificance that they are not noticeable, and this paper shows it can very well get along without them.

That The News-Bulletin is well liked as a community paper is attested by many renewal subscriptions, which are constantly coming in, and of the new subscriptions, which are being received right along. We have names on our list of subscribers who have been with us from the date the paper was started, four years ago, and who have faithfully renewed their subscriptions every year.

There is not another paper in the whole territory covered by The News-Bulletin which gives as much local news as this paper, in addition to its serial stories, magazine department and many other features. For a good, clean, home paper, The News-Bulletin fills the bill in every particular.

We also receive many complimentary remarks about the paper, so that we also get roses, even tho a few thorns creep in among them.

Vote "No" on Constitutional Question on December 12

One of the most important elections will be held December 12th, when the new proposed Constitution for the State of Illinois will be voted on. There are very few people who realize the significance of this election. The new proposed basic law is said to have many "jokers" in it, which, if adopted, will favor the rich, and the farmer and laborer will not be benefited. There is a concerted move on down State among the farmers to oppose the new Constitution.

Just by glancing over the new Constitution, one does not see anything wrong with it, but, on careful study, many features are found which should be voted down. There are a few good points, but they cannot be voted on separately, so that the chaff and wheat would have to be taken together if the Constitution is passed as it is written.

The public should not be misled as to the true merits of the new proposed basic law. The people of Will county, especially, should not be lulled to sleep on the proposition by the editorials appearing in the Joliet Herald-News in favor of the new Constitution, for it must be remembered that Edward Corlett, the Herald-News' guiding hand, was a delegate to the Constitutional Convention, and assisted in drafting the new basic law. Of course, the Herald-News will only naturally boost for the measure, no matter how much it works against the farmer.

One of the vulnerable provisions of the proposed Constitution, the farmers are being told, is the exemption from taxation of large landed estates owned by the millionaire, long-distance farmers in the north end of the State.

On superficial reading, this section may appear to be quite worthy, but, on closer scrutiny, there is observed by the rural folks another loophole thru which the millionaire landlords of Chicago may escape taxation, which will have to be loaded onto the backs of the already over-burdened farmers.

Not only does this provision exempt from taxation the show places of the absentee landlords, it is alleged, but provides that for certain tree culture a bounty may be paid. This provision, it is set forth, appears to have been taken out of the English book which exempts the hunting lodges of the titled class from taxation.

The farmers of Illinois are more interested in having taxes reduced on the fields they cultivate than on the Summer estates of the "gentlemen" farmers of Chicago's loop district.

Another bad feature of the new proposed Constitution is the abolishing of the Probate Court. Under the new system, two county judges would be required, and all probate work would have to be handled by the county clerk's office. The offices of probate judge and probate clerk would thus be abolished.

It appears that the majority of the provisions of the new Constitution favor the rich man, and are detrimental to the interests of the farmer and laborer. The News-Bulletin urges its readers to vote "No" on this issue.

The Herald-News has a spirit of monopoly, and of course its utterances will most naturally be

Old Oak Forest Landmark Sold

The old Oak Forest School building which is said to be over 70 years old and which has been a landmark, was sold Saturday at auction to Leonard Fulton for $55. There were two smaller bids. Since the school has been standing idle vandals have broken the windows with stones and had even started to tear off the siding.

Orland Road Work Nearing Completion

The work on the road west of Orland, which has been pushed along rapidly, is near its finish. The laborers have already reached the town of Orland, and are at present working their way thru town.

The road south of Yunker's schoolhouse is now open to motorists. This is the road that leads directly into Mokena. The road had been closed for some time on account of repairing bridges.

in favor of monopoly. If the Constitution is adopted, it will be a regrettable thing for the farmer and laborer. Efforts are being made downstate to show the farmers the menace to popular government that is alleged to lurk behind the oily phrases.

BODY CAPACITY IS CAUSE OF ANNOYANCE

Methods by Which Its Effects May Be Avoided—Possible Reasons for Fading Signals.

Questions have been asked regarding an apparent phenomenon in tuning. The phenomenon in the case is that just as the operator tuned in his station and removed his hands from the knob, the signals faded out; or it may have been the other way around, and if the operator touches his set while listening to a concert, the signals will fade out.

This may be caused by body capacity, and while some stations run into it quite frequently, others are not bothered at all. Those living close to a broadcasting station will never be bothered with it as it only occurs with a very close tuning. It is explained by the fact that the capacity of the body coming in contact with the set, which is very finely tuned, is thrown out of adjustment by the outside inductance.

There are several ways to guard against it, and one of the best is to line the inside of the panel with tin foil or aluminum foil and ground it. In pasting the tin foil on the back of the panel, it is cut away from all binding posts, switch points or rods to prevent short circuiting the set. There is one exception to this, and that is the ground binding post. If the tin foil is pasted over this, it is, of course, automatically grounded.

Shellac will do to make the foil adhere to the panel, which will not have to be dismantled to be lined, as the foil can be placed on in small strips. Another method of remedying the effects of body capacity is by using metal dials on the variocoupler and variometers; and in sets where the variometers are very close to one another, moving them away will help. Or in case it is not desired to change the set, placing a nonmagnetic material between the variometers which are close to each other and grounding it will remedy the ill effects. For this case, a piece of glass such as photographers use, covered with tinfoil on one side, is effective.

Fading signals have long been encountered by amateurs when receiving long-distance stations. In this case, the signals from a goodly distance away may be coming in loud and clear and then without warning fade away. In a few seconds they may return with all their force, and then when the amateur is congratulating himself, again the voices or music die out. Or fading may take the form of varying intensity of signals, one minute the operator being forced to strain his ears to catch the sound while the next voices may be loud and clear.

There have been many theories advanced for this phenomenon, and we are giving today two of the latest. The radio division of the Department of Commerce is reported to be under the impression that fading occurs when a cloud passes between the transmitting station and the receiving set. This theory has been one of the most popular among the experts, and recent tests have been made to obtain more complete data. If the passing cloud theory is a good explanation of fading there will be some new radio development very shortly. The effects of various types of clouds upon the signals is being studied, and the results of this study will be of interest to everyone interested in radio. Government officials are interested in eliminating fading, or overcoming it as much as possible, largely from the standpoint of the amateur, as the commercial stations, having much greater power than amateur sets, are able to overcome the atmospheric effects to a great extent.

The other theory, which has a close relation to the cloud theory, is that fading occurs when the signals pass through an area where rain is falling. In this theory, the idea is brought out in a different manner. It is stated in effect that clouds are a benefit to the signals, but that the rain will hurt them. The theory is that the condensation of the particles of moisture in the air which form the clouds has the property of making the medium highly conductive to radio signals. Just before a storm when there is more condensation in the clouds, the signals should be at their strongest. When the storm breaks, and the air becomes saturated, the condition is said to change and the falling rain actually grounds the signals. This sudden change in atmosphere is stated as the reason for the varying intensity in the signals.

An approximate method of measuring the antenna resistance is by means of a condenser and a calibrated 25-ohm resistance unit connected in series. This so-called phantom antenna is then connected with the antenna and ground circuit to a double pole, double throw switch, so that the output of the transmitting set can be connected either to the antenna and ground or to the phantom antenna circuit.

To find the antenna resistance at any wave length, first tune the set to the desired wave length with the transmitter connected to the antenna and ground and note the antenna current. Throw the output of the transmitter on the phantom antenna circuit and adjust the resistance and capacity until the antenna ammeter shows the same reading. The value of the resistance in the phantom circuit is the approximate antenna resistance at that wave length. This method of measuring the antenna resistance is by no means accurate, but will serve as a value from which comparative data can be obtained. By plotting a curve representing the antenna resistance at different wave lengths it is possible to determine whether the antenna being used has its minimum resistance at the wave length on which the transmitting is done.

Perhaps by changing the physical dimensions of the antenna the minimum resistance can be shifted to the wave length on which it is desired to transmit.

If a counterpoise is not used, the effect on the antenna resistance can readily be measured, approximately, by erecting a temporary one and measuring the antenna resistance before and after the erection. Again it is well to plot a curve showing the relation between the wave length and antenna resistance.

In no case will the curve showing the relation between wave-length and antenna resistance be smooth. Don't allow bumps in the curve to lead one astray. The absorption of energy by some nearby object will cause the antenna resistance at certain wave lengths to show fictitiously high wave lengths.

COLONEL GREEN A RADIO FAN

Son of Hetty Has an Elaborate Apparatus at His Home in New Bedford.

Round Hills, the country home of Col. Edward H. R. Green, son of the late Hetty Green, at New Bedford, Mass., sounds like a haunted estate since its owner has been bitten by the radio bug, says the New York World.

In the sun room of the house stock quotations, weather reports, music and speeches flow all day from the receiving station there. In the boathouse come the booming tones of the amplifier.

That's all there is now, but Colonel Green has not done yet. Within a few days his new six-room studio, housing the most complete broadcasting station in the country, will be finished.

Colonel Green is not enjoying his radio pleasures alone. The first try-out of his truck was made a few days ago, and it went rolling about the neighborhood reeling off concerts and talk from Newark and Schenectady for the delighted farmers.

But the amplifier is the colonel's pet. This is just such a machine as was used to make President Harding's inaugural address audible to the 125,000 gathered about the capitol. At Round Hills the sound will be plainly heard over a radius of five miles.

"Anybody who has a set of two good ears has all the required receiving apparatus," the colonel says. "I'm so interested in this thing that I haven't time for anything else. I'm like a child with a new toy, who can't be induced to put it down."

TIPS TO THE RADIOIST

Radio concerts are being given in public parks all over the country.

An international union of radio operators has been founded in Brussels.

A boy in Plainfield, N. J., has built a radio set the size of a match box.

Radio concerts are proving of decided benefit to inmates of institutions for the insane.

In Montana radio is furnishing entertainment to the oil well drillers during their idle hours.

The most northerly wireless station on the globe is probably at the village of Noorvik, just inside the Arctic circle, with a population of 360 Eskimos.

An Oklahoma doctor who has a large number of hospital patients maintains a radio outfit on his automobile so that he can be instantly reached if needed at the hospital.

In the case of the new receiving apparatus that goes on the throat another slang phrase becomes legitimate. To say "He got it in the neck" now means receiving radio.

Mr. Edison took out a radio patent as early as 1881, but he says it is difficult to say who should be called the inventor of the wireless. He thinks it has just been "built up."

Another feature of radio has come to light. In these days of the dry dinner guests are able to remain comfortably at home and hear the after-dinner speeches, cutting them as short as may be desirable.

Cattle are now skinned by electricity. New as to cattle, perhaps, but many radio fans have been skinned by sellers of phony stock for some time past.

The United States naval observatory sends time signals to Australia by radio.

It is now said that communication with Venus would be entirely within the realm of possibility were it not for the great cost. Dr. Abbott reports that the cost of sending radio waves to Venus would be enormous. That planet reflects light as if it were surrounded by clouds and all conditions indicate intelligent life.

Tanlac Put Him Back on Job, Says Davis

"I've never been much of a hand at praising medicines, but I can certainly say something good for Tanlac," said Geo. Davis, 110 Naglee St., San Francisco, Calif.

"I had a bad case of ptomaine poisoning and it came pretty near laying me out altogether. For three months I was in an awful condition and suffering constantly from diarrhea. I became weak all over and was going from bad to worse. I tried everything I knew of, but it was beginning to look like nothing would ever reach my case. Then, a friend of mine recommended Tanlac to me. And it's a fact, four bottles have made a clean sweep of my troubles and built me up to where I feel like a new man. I am working every day now and when it comes to recommending Tanlac I can't put it too strong."

He Had to Stand It.
Yesterday while I was seasick it seemed to me I couldn't stand six days more of it or any more of it. Which reminded me of a remark I once heard a very old man make. He was ill and was telling me of his troubles. Without thinking I said: "I don't see how you stand it!" The old man thought a while and then replied feebly: "I have to stand it!" ANYTHING TO BE OBLIGING
Little Thing Like That Mentioned Was Nothing to This Applicant for American Citizenship.

At each hearing where applications of foreign-born persons seeking citizenship in the United States are considered and passed on, incidents come up which add humor to the otherwise serious process. At a recent hearing before Judge W. W. Thornton of the Superior court, Room 1, George Mackay, United States naturalization officer, was quizzing an applicant regarding his knowledge of the inner workings of the government and regarding the history of the United States.

"Who was the first President of the United States?" he asked.
"Washington, D. C.," replied the anxious applicant.

"Just leave off the D. C.," said Mr. Mackay.

"Oh, I don't care," said the applicant nonchalantly, with an accompanying gesture of his hand.—Washington Star.

"Rapid enough to keep a dress from going out of style between the time I order it and the time I get a chance to wear it."

To be womanly is the greatest charm of woman.

It's hard to get money and it's harder to keep it.

Do you hear the clock strike the night hours?

HOW often you have heard people say, "I can't drink coffee; it keeps me awake nights!" They've learned from experience; have you?

If you are a coffee drinker and fail to get sound restful sleep, it means that your nerves are over-stimulated and that health needs protection from coffee's drug, caffeine.

There's no sacrifice in making health safe, as so many thousands have found who have turned from coffee to Postum. It has a delightful coffee-like flavor, and is free from any element that can harm you. As many cups as you like, and no regrets.

Your grocer has Postum in two forms: Instant Postum (in tins) prepared instantly in the cup by the addition of boiling water. Postum Cereal (in packages) for those who prefer to make the drink while the meal is being prepared; made by boiling fully 20 minutes.

The two forms of Postum are equally delicious; and the cost is only about 1/2c per cup.

EXPORTS OF WHEAT SHOWING BIG GAIN

GRAIN MOVEMENT TO EUROPE EMPHASIZES NEED OF SEA-WAY FROM CHICAGO.

MEANS MILLIONS TO FARMERS

Saving on Cost of Freight and Handling Will Add Six to Eight Cents Value to Every Bushel Sent Aboard—Nearly Half of Crop Exported.

Farmers of the great Northwest, in which most of America's export grain is grown, will save millions of dollars annually with the completion of the Great Lakes-St. Lawrence waterway. This year's increase in wheat exports is an incontestable argument for the seaway from Chicago.

In the fiscal year of 1921 the United States exported more than a million bushels a day on the average of wheat and about half as much corn. The same average is being kept up this year. Some have predicted that the United States would cease to be an exporter of wheat, but the records of overseas commerce prove the contrary. Forty-five per cent of the 1920 crop went abroad and government figures indicate that the current fiscal year will show a record of more than 45 per cent exported. Corn exports also are increasing.

This season's rates on wheat and corn from Chicago to Montreal, through shipments in canal-size vessels, are approximately 8½¢ a bushel, which includes transfer to overseas ships at Montreal harbor. In the big lake carriers the rate has averaged 2¢—this for three-fourths of the total distance to Montreal. If the big ships could go all the way 3¢ would be quite as remunerative as is the present 2¢ rate to Buffalo, which would mean immediate saving of over 5¢ a bushel on top of the present saving on all-water rates via Montreal as against lakes to Buffalo and rail to New York of 3¢, making more than 8¢ per bushel. The best students and judges of crop improvement believe that the economy of the improved St. Lawrence route will average fully 7¢ per bushel on corn and wheat as against anything that can possibly be done by any other existing or possible route.

With the opening of the lakes-to-ocean-going commerce, thus eliminating much lost motion, the saving on freight and cost of transfer will mean several million dollars annually. It adds from 6 to 8 cents to the value of every bushel sent to Europe.

Grain is not the only commodity which will be exported direct from Chicago. There are meats, lard, cheese, canned milk and manufactured goods of a hundred kinds.

One of the objections raised by the opponents of the Great Lakes-St. Lawrence canal is that to make the use of ships possible there must be inbound as well as outbound freight, and they ask, "Where is the return cargo?" In 1920 the Chicago Association of Commerce undertook a study of this problem so far as Chicago is concerned and found that more than 1,000 of its members were engaged directly in foreign commerce. Figures obtainable show that Chicago imports brought into the country in 1920 more than a billion of dollars' worth of goods, not including grain from Canada.

JAPS INELIGIBLE FOR CITIZENSHIP

California Decision That Nipponese Not White Upheld by High Court.

LAW MEANS CAUCASIAN RACE

Supreme Tribunal's Final Decision Holds That Enlightenment and Culture of Mikado's People Is Not Germane to Controversy.

Washington, Nov. 14.—The United States Supreme court held that Japanese are not white within the meaning of the American law and are not entitled to citizenship in the United States. The decision was a confirmation of a ruling by the California Circuit Court of Appeals in a test case brought by Takao Ozawa of Honolulu, who claimed he was "white" and therefore eligible for citizenship in the United States. The Supreme court of the state of Washington was upheld in denying citizenship to Takao Yamashita and Charles Hio Kono of Seattle in the same decision.

The decision held that the two Japanese were not entitled to naturalization under United States laws and therefore could not enter a business partnership.

The Supreme court's decision in these cases has long been awaited, particularly on the Pacific coast, where anti-Japanese feeling exists.

Ozawa contended he was entitled to American citizenship as a descendant of the white tribe of Aisu. He started his fight for citizenship several years ago in Hawaii, but was defeated in the courts there and also in the higher courts in California. Ozawa has lived in Hawaii since his childhood and was educated in the American schools there.

Yamashita presented an argument similar to that of Ozawa. He appealed to the Supreme court when the courts of the state of Washington denied him the privilege of incorporating a real estate company because of his ineligibility of citizenship.

BUTTERFLY'S FAREWELL CALL

Now Mr. Monarch Butterfly had been talking and singing to Mr. Sun, and he had made all his plans for going away for the winter months.

It was his custom to go South, and he traveled by wing, as the birds travel by wing.

He was going to make one call before he left—that was on his friend Sir Clouded Sulphur Butterfly.

"Ah yes," said Mr. Monarch Butterfly once more, "it is fine that I can travel South in the winter. It is more interesting to travel than to sleep."

"Of course those who sleep in the winter wouldn't agree with me. But then it would be a dull world if everyone agreed with everyone else, a very dull world indeed."

"And it would be a dull world if everyone did the same thing as everyone else."

"Well, I must be off for my call, and then for my journey. How lucky I am that I do not have to carry my luggage."

"I don't have to bother about express companies and railway trains and tickets and such nonsense."

"I don't need any ticket the way I travel, no indeed, and I don't need a trunk, and I don't need a suitcase. All I need to do is fly by day and rest on the bushes at night. Sometimes I'll have companions and sometimes not."

The Monarch flew over to his friend, Sir Clouded Sulphur Butterfly.

Sir Clouded Sulphur was at home in his Clover library.

"I've come to say good-by for the winter," said Mr. Monarch Butterfly. "I'm going down South, as is the family custom."

"I'm sorry to see you go," said Sir Clouded Sulphur, "but soon I'll be asleep, and I wouldn't be very sociable that way."

"Isn't it rather a long trip to take by yourself?" he added. "I should think you'd be afraid."

"Oh, it's always hard to leave, I suppose," Mr. Monarch Butterfly said. "I can't bear to say good-by, but I don't care to sleep for the whole winter, as so many of you do, and so I must go to a warm climate."

"Sometimes I do feel a little afraid. But, Sir Clouded, we'll never get anywhere at all if we're always afraid, will we?"

"And I wouldn't deserve my name of Monarch Butterfly if I were a coward and afraid to go adventuring. Besides, I've had narrow escapes here."

"I've been sitting in the warm sunshine sipping sweet drinks, and I've almost been caught!"

"I've passed through dangers, and I'm not afraid. I want to have adventures. I want to see the great, wide world. I want to go where the birds go, where there'll be singing all through the winter! I love music. And the flowers will bloom, too!"

"And Mr. Sun has promised that he will not fall to see that I keep warm. So I'm going. It is exciting to think that I shall fly off this very day!"

"And I'll go beyond these hills and these valleys for a journey and adventures."

"It is all right for you," said Sir Clouded Sulphur, "but I never, never, never want to leave my home."

"You make me feel a little homesick already," said Mr. Monarch Butterfly. "Good-by, good-by, pleasant sleep!"

Sir Clouded Sulphur waved a good-by in his cheery fashion.

And then Mr. Monarch started off. Then he turned back after he had gone just a little way.

"Good-by, milkweed home," he whispered, as he bent down over the milkweed plant which had been his beloved food and resting place and playground.

"Please be here when I come back in the spring."

"You've made me so happy, and I love you so, my little simple, beloved milkweed home"

Then he kissed one of the leaves and also took a wee bit along for a keepsake!

He felt rather sad for a few moments and then he spread out his wings and took a deep breath of the sweet autumn air.

"How foolish I was to feel sad!" he exclaimed. "I couldn't sleep all winter and I'd freeze my wings if I stayed up here. And Mr. Sun is going to shine over me. I'll not be lonely."

"There may be dangers ahead—but I'm leaving dangers behind. And I'm not afraid."

"For what is life without adventures?"

And he began his long flight, straight for the warm and sunny South!

"Good-by, Milkweed Home."

"Good-by, Milkweed Home."

"Good-by, Milkweed Home."

"Good-by, Milkweed Home."

"Good-by, Milkweed Home."

"Good-by, Milkweed Home."
